Prof. David Cassuto

Professor David N. Cassuto is an expert in environmental law specializing in international comparative law, water law, property law and animal law. Professor Cassuto has published a number of path-breaking works in the field of environmental and cultural studies. He speaks frequently on these topics in both North America and South America.

After private practice, Dr. Cassuto joined the faculty of Pace Law School. He holds a B.A. from Wesleyan University, a J.D. from the University of California, Berkeley School of Law and a PhD from Indiana University.

Ementa

- What is an animal? Are animals entitled to legal protection? If so, what type of protection? Do some animals have more legal protection than others? If so, why? If not, then why are animals in agriculture treated differently than pets? What are the scope of animal cruelty laws? What is the connection between animal law and environmental law? Should animals have legal rights? If so, what does that mean? If not, why not?

These are some of the questions that will be explored in: Animal Law: An Introduction.
